The Hudson River School Art Trail Opens Its 18th Site in the Hudson River Valley

The Latest Site is at the Catskill Center's Platte Clove Preserve in the Town of Hunter in Greene County

Catskill, NY – July 24, 2018 – The Hudson River School Art Trail has opened its 18th site in the Hudson River Valley. The site is located at the Catskill Center's Platte Clove Preserve, 208 acres of pristine wilderness – open to the public for quiet enjoyment – with beautiful waterfalls and trails at the head of the rugged and scenic Platte Clove in the Town of Hunter in Greene County. The site reveals the same view depicted in 19th-Century Hudson River School paintings by renowned artist Asher B. Durand. The Hudson River School Art Trail was first launched by the Thomas Cole National Historic Site in 2005 with seven stops on the trail. This year's expansion was prepared for New York State Water Resources Institute and the NYS Department of Environmental Conservation Hudson River Estuary Program, with support from the NYS Environmental Protection Fund.

The Hudson River School Art Trail makes accessible through free online maps and educational materials many of the views that inspired Thomas Cole – founder of the Hudson River School of painting, America’s first major art movement – his legendary student Frederic Church, and other artists of the Hudson River School such as Asher B. Durand. The Art Trail is a collaborative project across multiple organizations that was established in 2005 to facilitate a connection between the landscapes that inspired Hudson River School artists and contemporary audiences. The Art Trail is presented by the Thomas Cole National Historic Site in partnership with Olana State Historic Site, The Olana Partnership, the Hudson River Valley National Heritage Area, the National Park Service Rivers & Trails program, the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation and New York State Parks, and the Greene County Tourism & Planning Department.

THE THOMAS COLE NATIONAL HISTORIC SITE is an international destination presenting the original home and studios of Thomas Cole, the founder of the Hudson River School of painting, the nation’s first major art movement. Located on 6 acres in the Hudson Valley, the site includes the 1815 Main House; Cole’s 1839 Old Studio; the recently reconstructed New Studio building; and panoramic views of the Catskill Mountains. It is a National Historic Landmark and an affiliated area of the National Park System. The Cole Site’s activities include guided tours, special exhibitions of both 19th-century and contemporary art, printed publications, extensive online programs, activities for school groups, free community events, lectures, and innovative public programs such as the Hudson River School Art Trail—a map and website that enables visitors to visit the places that Cole painted. The goal of all programs at the Cole Site is to enable visitors to find meaning and inspiration in Thomas Cole’s life and work. The themes that Cole explored in his art and writings—such as landscape preservation and our conception of nature as a restorative power—are both historic and timely, providing the opportunity to connect to audiences with insights that are highly relevant to their own lives.
